ALEXANDRIA, Va. — The American Physical Therapy Association is pleased to announce that Justine Handelman has been appointed to its Board of Directors as a public member. Handelman is a government affairs executive from Kensington, Maryland.

“The public member position was created to bring outside perspective and unique expertise to the work we do to guide the association,” said APTA CEO Justin Moore, PT, DPT. “We’re excited to have Justine join us as our third public member and look forward to her contributions.”

Justine Handelman is the founder and president of Handelman Strategies, a government affairs and political strategy consultancy. In her work, she focuses on key health care issues in the federal government and states for major corporations and industries. Prior to founding Handelman Strategies, Handelman served as senior vice president, policy and advocacy, for the Blue Cross Blue Shield Association, where she worked for over 20 years. Throughout her career, she has advocated for improving the accessibility, quality, and affordability of health care throughout the U.S.

“I’m thrilled to be able to lend my expertise to benefit the physical therapy profession and am honored to be selected to serve as a public member,” said Handelman.

Last week, the American Physical Therapy Association announced the newly elected 2026 Board of Directors and officers. This leadership body provides strategic direction for the organization and advocates on behalf of physical therapists, physical therapist assistants, students of physical therapy, and patients nationwide to advance the profession of physical therapy and improve the health of society.
